Universe is (we know not) the source of Nature - Matter Theory - Matter Theory can and will be extended beyond the universe - Spheres of Reality - Nature is that which manifests within spheres of Reality * matter is the aspect of Nature in which all phenomena appear in terms of time and space Abandonment is the seeing that the substance of Reality is not the material world. Substance is the dual. The substance is not focused on within the material perception of dual. Thus the dual is seen as the substance. When dual is understood as substance and substance is understood as dual, then the consciousness within the dual awakens or becomes aware. Thus, the awakening reveals to the being which the substance is. The mind within the dual is awakened. It awakens to the nature and essence of dual. This moment when the mind awakens is then the moment of abandonment. In this moment the knowing and attention of the mind is brought together in purity. The purity of this moment is then able to be focused upon. The purity is not focused on within the dual. Thus, dual is seen as being. The moment of dual being illuminated, the divine light is revealed. This illumination of the divine light is where the maturation process of abandonment is. The divine light is the relationship of the awareness and non-dual. Thus, the attention and knowing of the mind awakened. This awakening is of the non-dual. The non-dual is awareness and knowing and is beyond time. It is the act of the divine nature which reveals to the being what is possible. In this way the being then creates this reality within itself by focusing on what is real. In this moment of abandonment the mind begins to focus on the substance as awareness of duality. The knowing is within the substance. Thus the duality reveals of duality. The substance is dual. The being is duality. Duality is duality. Thus the duality reveals the non-duality. The non-duality reveals duality. The duality reveals the non-duality. Thus, the non-duality discloses duality. The duality reveals the non-duality. The duality reveals duality. The non-duality reveals the duality. The duality reveals the non-duality. The duality reveals the non-duality. The non

Monday...And the Ups & Downs of the SAT!
Today I'm doing an AWESOMETASTIC POST! It might seem a little bit different than your normal post. If you don't already know what an "awesome" post is, check this out! It's a great way to show off your school, or something you are doing, in a great way! It's time to show the world how awesome you are! In my case, this awesome post is about the SAT! It was one of the biggest tests I have ever taken, yet I can honestly say, it was pretty fun! Don't believe me? Check out my experience with the SAT below. A little back story before I start with my adventure on the SAT: Currently, my 9th grade English teacher is a law firm partner. She has a solid background in English, and a very firm background in law. She is very persistant when it comes to teaching. Before tests, she goes over the sample questions, and the passage, and makes sure you know what the question is asking, and why the question is asking the way it is. For example, the sample questions might be about a specific grammar rule, and she will point

1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a refrigerator door and a hinge mechanism therefor, and more particularly, to a refrigerator door for a refrigerator having a slim structure and a hinge mechanism for the same capable of improving corrosion resistance of the hinge mechanism. 2. Prior Art Typically, a refrigerator includes a case for receiving food to be preserved and a door movably mounted to the case. The door is made open/close by a hinge mechanism mounted in the door and case. Recently, as a trend for global environmental protection has become more rigid, the manufacture of refrigerators has developed toward slimness thereof. In order to obtain a slim refrigerator, the hinge mechanism for the door must also be slim. For this purpose, in addition to improving the hinge mechanism itself, such as reduction of the weight of the hinge mechanism, improvement of a corrosion-resistant property thereof, and improvements in other quality factors. One prior art hinge mechanism is disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 5,555,819. The hinge mechanism includes first and second shafts which are movably connected to each other, first and second hinge members mounted at both ends of the first and second shafts to be rotatable in longitudinal and transverse directions, a first kinematic coupling pivotably mounted on one of the first and second hinge members, and a second kinematic coupling pivotably mounted on the other one thereof. The first and second kinematic couplings are slidably connected to each other so as to allow angular rotation of the first and second shafts as well as longitudinal and transverse rotation of the first and second hinge members. Another prior art hinge mechanism for a refrigerator door is disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 6,478,076. The hinge mechanism includes a shaft, a hinge member having a hub rotatably mounted to an end of the shaft, and a first connection member and a second connection member. The first connection member and the second connection member are mounted to the hub of the hinge member so as to be slidably and spaced apart from each other. The first connection member is connected at one side of the shaft while the second connection member is connected at the other side of the shaft, so that the first connection member and the second connection member are freely slidably connected to the shaft with the hinge member
